RETRO 57

BONNIE SUE HARRISON, Editor-in-chief
JANI CRIMMEL, Business Manager

PUBLISHED BY THE SENIOR CLASS
OF HARTFORD CITY HIGH SCHOOL
HARTFORD CITY, INDIANA

How different is the supersonic jet from the first stick-and-wire biplane! Developed through years of research, the dream of yesterday has become reality today. We are living in an age of speed, perhaps most perfectly symbolized by the jet. A product of perfection, the silver bird departs from the earth to shoot through the blue sky, leaving its visible vapor trail as evidence of its presence.

The school is the student's world, just as the sky is the world of the jet. Also traveling at a rapid speed, the student embarks as a seventh grader upon a six-year journey and all too soon finds himself on the runway of the gym floor wearing a cap and gown.

The sporting events, the prom, the class play, and even the classes— all are part of our vapor stream which vanishes quickly. But the memories of these things will not vanish, for this, The 1957 Retro, is the log of our journey. Turn the pages and accompany us on a flight through Hartford High.

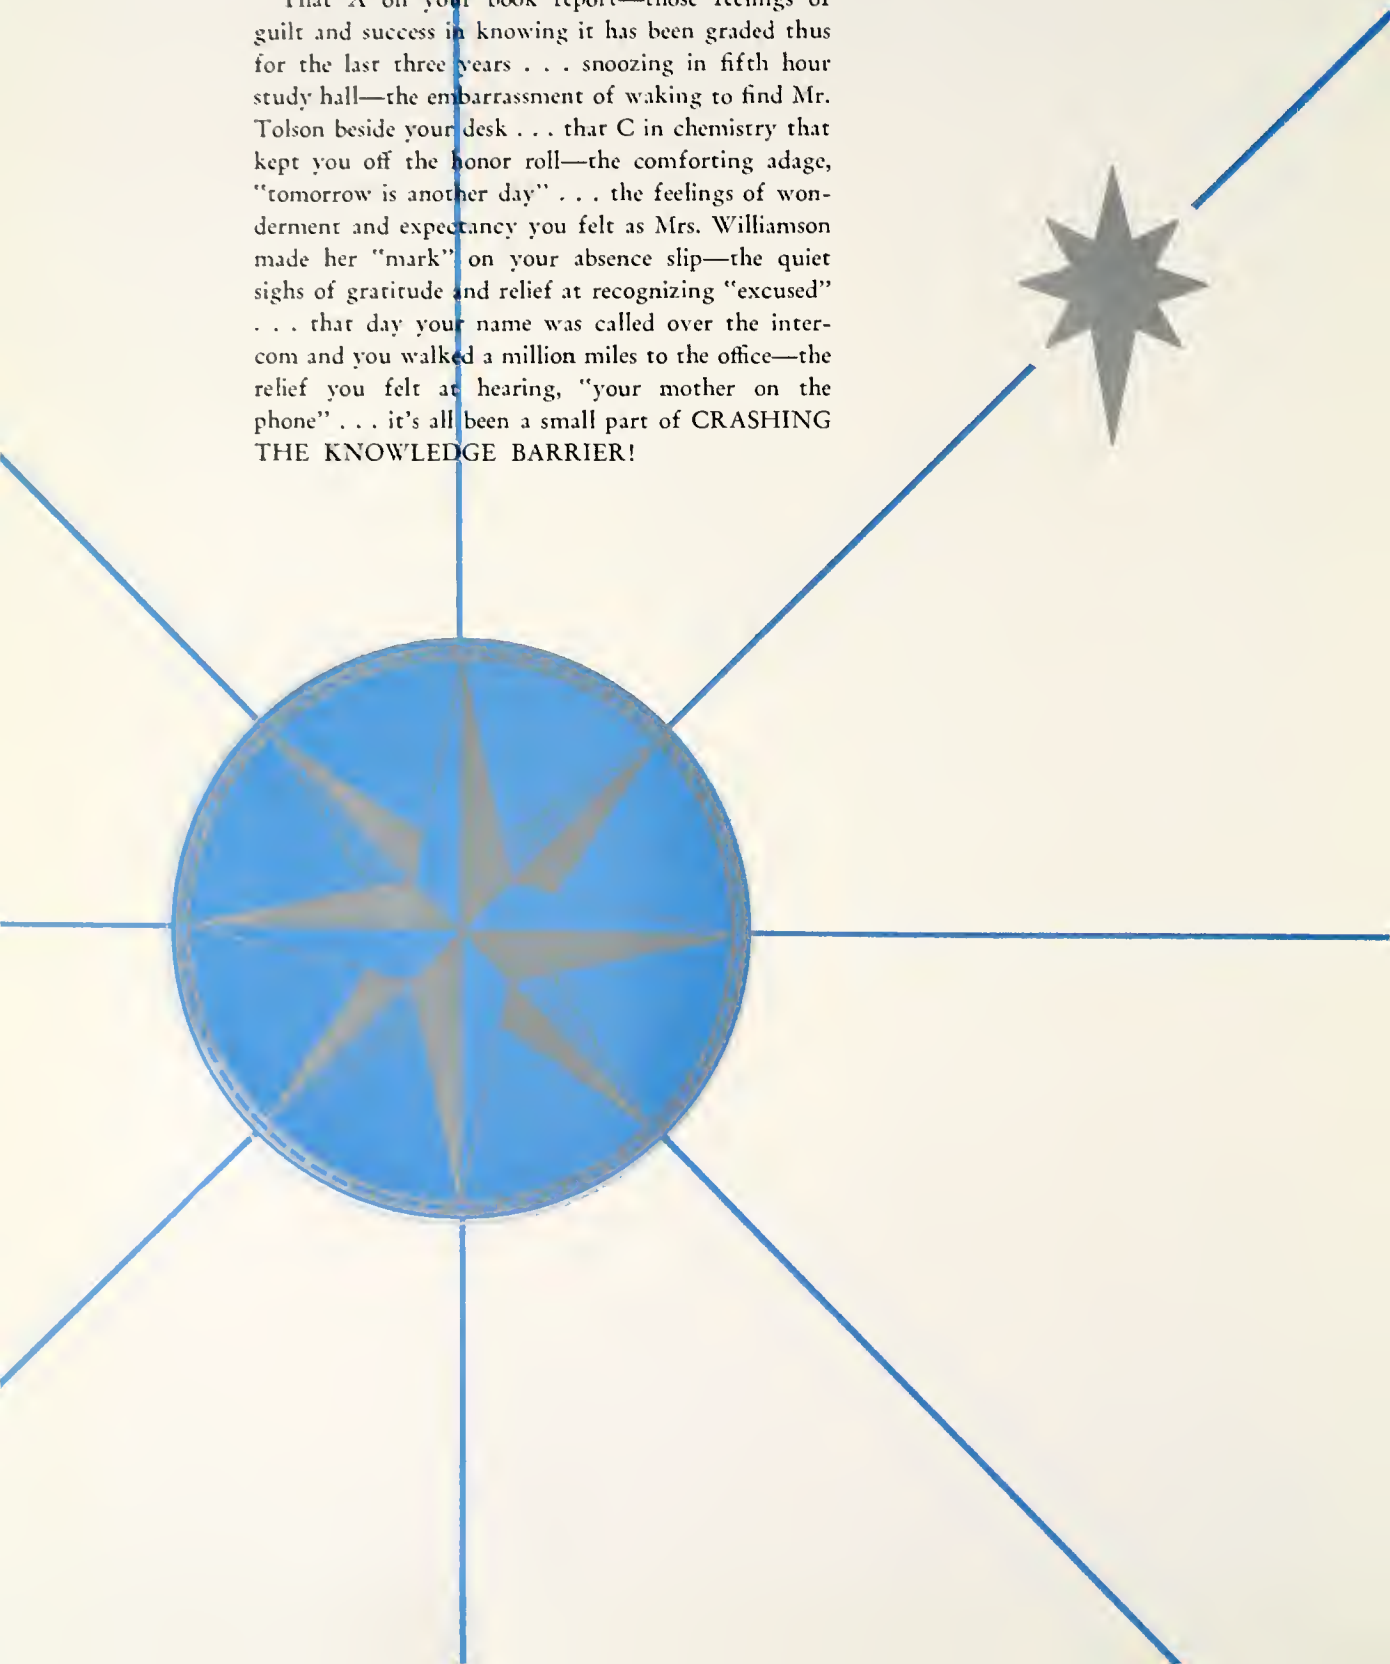
Crashing The Knowledge Barrier

That A on your book report—those feelings of guilt and success in knowing it has been graded thus for the last three years . . . snoozing in fifth hour study hall—the embarrassment of waking to find Mr. Tolson beside your desk . . . that C in chemistry that kept you off the honor roll—the comforting adage, "tomorrow is another day" . . . the feelings of wonderment and expectancy you felt as Mrs. Williamson made her "mark" on your absence slip—the quiet sighs of gratitude and relief at recognizing "excused" . . . that day your name was called over the intercom and you walked a million miles to the office—the relief you felt at hearing, "your mother on the phone" . . . it's all been a small part of CRASHING THE KNOWLEDGE BARRIER!



(TOP): French students eagerly respond to a question asked by Miss Fee. (BOTTOM): Mike Needler presents a gift for being the "fairest of them all" to Marquita Pontius as other contestants, in their Roman togas, look on.

Learning Languages

Watching for such fallacies as hasty generalization and false analogies, speech students practiced the procedures of formal debates and informal discussions. The 11 young "orators" addressed classmates with dedications, and climaxed the course by giving 45-minute speeches on any subject, following the methods learned throughout the semester.

Panel discussions on teenage problems, as well as weekly themes, and several book reports, kept the underclass English classes busy while seniors waded through the school's college prep course via workbooks. Latin students took in the Chicago sights on their trip to the "windy city" and corresponded with foreign pen pals to liven the routine of translating the ancient language. French students studied the origin of their romantic language and the history of the 37 French provinces through the use of their recently purchased 5-ft. by 4-ft. map.

Seventeen juniors and seniors became "guinea pigs" for the new diversified occupation plan. All D. O. students received a grade from their employer and one from their instructor, with whom they spent a fifth hour activity period. Using the services of new electric and gas ranges, plus two new refrigerators, the "homemakers of tomorrow" transferred recipes on paper into tasty dishes of "goodies."

Preparing For Future Jobs

Academic Courses Train Future Doctors, Engineers

A switch occurred this year in the math department when Mr. Allee taught algebra while Mr. Teats became geometry tudor.

Field trips highlighted the year's events for chemistry students who kept busy avoiding acid-burned fingers as they performed their experiments. Taking the National Science Talent Search Test was a top endeavor for the 19 physics students.

A typical day found the biologists pursuing those "hard-to-pronounce" terms or acquiring the talent (or should we say nerve?) to disect a pickled frog.

(LEFT): Jon Schwaner, Nolan Willman, Linda Charnely, Jim Clark, and Jerry Galbreath combine hydrochloric acid and zinc, one step in the process of preparing hydrogen. (RIGHT): viewing minute organisms through microscopes are Jean Holtzleiter, Mr. Repass, and Donnie Everhart.

It may have been 3:00 A. M., but droopy-eyed sociology students diligently typed the last lines of their 1,500-word "masterpieces" to make the December 21 deadline. Such was a requirement of the two sociology classes this year—term papers written on some social problem. The obviously favorite topic was alcohol, as 17 students wrote of its disadvantages to the public.

Given the chance to raise their grades by reading material outside of class, junior sociologists could often be seen browsing through an article concerning marriage problems or race relations to get those 75 pages of outside reading needed for an A.

Supervising the mock election on November 5 and planning trips to national parks in complete detail were the civics students. They also participated in weekly discussions on current events and gained much information concerning the government. Besides searching for untruthful advertisements on the radio and learning to balance a budget, economic students also explored Engel's laws and filled out sample income tax forms.

World history students relived the explorations of Magellan while U. S. history pupils memorized the 48 states and capitals.

Commercial Courses Prepare Future Stenographers

(TOP): Madeline Howell checks out a library book for Drinda Cole. (BOTTOM): Mrs. Williamson explains a typing error to Jane Cale, office practice student.

Frequent moans and groans can be heard coming from room 9 as bookkeeping students toil over those problems that "just won't check out."

Typing students find no time to sneak in work on other lessons as they begin at the turtle pace of a-s-d-f-j-k-l-; and progress to the much desired and hard-to-achieve errorless 40-minute timed writings.

Serving as a student stenographer to the principal for a week during their office practice course, the future secretaries encounter every office problem imaginable as they take dictation, transcribe, and operate the ditto machine.

Library science students apply their knowledge to the "book world" as they catalogue the school's many books under the Dewey Decimal System, interpret the card catalogue, and find books for those "I can't find it" students.

Electives Fun, Yet Teach

"Oh, my aching muscles!" This standard comment again prevailed as physical education students performed their "rough and tumble" antics. Whether participating in those "invigorating" exercises two, three or five days a week, these "guys and dolls" kept in "ship shape" through swimming, tumbling and volleyball.

A short stroll through the main hall shows the observer what goes on "behind the scenes" in the art room. Besides adorning the halls with their "masterpieces" each week, art lovers found time to enter poster contests and lend their services to prom decorations and school publications.

Principal Myron Clark and Mrs. Marion Williamson, assistant principal, preside at the daily rush for absence slips.

As Our Navigators

"Your attention please!" This familiar command by Principal Myron Clark is repeated approximately 180 times during the school year as he acts as pilot to the 465 senior high pupils and 283 junior high students of his school family.

Managing the office, keeping all school records, and teaching two classes were among the duties assumed by Mr. Clark's co-pilot, Mrs. Marion Williamson, assistant principal.

Reigning as "chief navigator" of the city schools, Mr. E. Phillip Blackburn ably handled the many complex problems which arose, and contributed to the plans for a new South Side Grade School, to be completed in the near future. His crewmen, the board members—Mr. Joe Bonham, H. D. Thornburg, and Keith Wentz—met twice each month to discuss current school issues and aid in planning the new institution for learning.

Keeping all books in order and the budget balanced, as well as making out various state reports, kept executive secretary Leila Lewis "on the go."

Superintendent of Schools E. Phillips Blackburn makes one of his many important telephone calls.

Board of Education members—Joe Bonham, Keith Wentz, and H. D. Thornburg—discuss the list of school expenditures.

Giving Aid and Advice . . . Teachers Lead Busy Life

In the midst of slide rules, carbon paper, maps, dictionaries, "Harvey," students, and various other familiar items, we find the people known as . . . TEACHERS!

Appearing on the teaching staff this year were seven new faces. Among the new tudors, four lucky lasses and one lone male experienced their first year of teaching. Mr. Tolson had been "broken in" one year previously, while Mrs. Hartzell is a 14-year veteran.

Assisting and sponsoring the 12 extra-curricular clubs was the way in which many of the instructors spent their few "extra" hours. Seventy students extended a "merci" to two of the first year teachers as they joined the newly established organizations—G. A. A., and Dramatics. Another new look in extra-curricular activities was the girls' pep club sponsored by Miss Kasparek and occupying two sections of the gym with its 160 members.

Aside from their roles as sponsors, the 30-member teaching staff again assumed their primary purpose—that of passing on their knowledge to the students of H. C. H. S.

Band Adds Zip To Games, Wins Top Ratings

Director William Fread, in a characteristic gesture, leads senior band members in a concert number.

Band members sported beaming smiles this year after raising $1,088 by selling band tags and stickers. This was the largest amount ever taken in on annual Band Tag Day.

Garbed in their sparkling black and gold uniforms, the band members journeyed to the Bluffton street fair where they received a "superior" rating for the third consecutive year. At the district marching contest at Ft. Wayne, the instrumentalists were awarded an "excellent" rating for their Showboat show.

Entertaining the football fans and parade watchers, the high-stepping bandsmen marched "in all kinds of weather" and presented minor forms of "rock 'n roll" music at pep sessions and basketball games.

Under the direction of Mr. William Fread, the band journeyed to Arcadia, Jackson Central, and Ben Davis high schools as part of their April tour. Besides performing in the winter and spring concerts, the band worked many hours on their three contest numbers and after adding the final touches were awarded "superior."

Choristers Harmonize For Fun And Favors

Making a recording to be placed in the Congressional National Library at Washington, D. C., was the hightlighting event for Mixed Chorus members this year.

The Christmas season found the choristers "extra" busy, as they built and rode on a community Christmas parade float, presented a program, " 'Tis Xmas in Hartford City," for the Kiwanis Club and Student Council programs, and paraded through the halls caroling for the pleasure of fellow classmates.

Besides airing their talents before civic, community club, and school program audiences, the chorus members found time to give their annual mid-winter concert, present a program at the Veteran's Hospital in Marion, and carry their tunes to the district contest.

The group, featuring a girls' trio, was under the direction of Miss Esther Nesbit and accompanied by Jane Ellen Wesner and Kathleen Stroup.

Academic Clubs Mix Fun With Learning

DRAMATIC CLUB

(ROW 1): Mr. Tolson, sponsor; P. Hemmert, D. Bennett, F. Cunningham, J. Crimmel, M. Dee, B. Harrison, P. Coleman. (ROW 2): M. Spahr, D. Smtih, B. Hiday, J. Hartman, S. Roush, J. A. Myers, J. The new Dramatics Club formed a very complete constitution during the second semester to be used for following years. Because of getting a late start, the club, under the direction of Mr. George Tolson, limited its activities to after-school meetings.

Nature enthusiasts worked diligently under the guiding hand of Mr. John Repass to earn the necessary $50 to purchase a telescope. After raising all but $10 of the needed amount, the club members sold shares at 25 cents each to anyone wishing to contribute to the instrument and thus receive benefit of its use.

Philatelists met throughout the year to exchange stamps and listen to discussions by the club sponsor James Lurtey. The stamp collectors sent to foreign countries to widen their collections and received stamps from as far as the Gold Coast.

STAMP CLUB

STANDING): Franklin Dill, Judy Emshiwiller, Mike Hartman, Carrie Atkins. (SEATED): Patty Rogers, Bill Keeshan, Mr. Lurtey, sponsor.

NATURE STUDY CLUB

Surrounding Mr. Repass are Nature Study Club members Carrie Atkins, Russel Morris, James Smith and Douglas Hoy.

Language Clubs Teach

Planning and taking a field trip to Indianapolis was the highlighting project of the French Club, sponsored by Miss Mabel Fee. Delving into the study of the culture, civilization, methods, and everyday language of the French people, the 14 madamoiselles and monsieurs concentrated on relating the things they studied to modern everyday life. Corresponding with pen pals proved interesting for the French enthusiasts who earned money from the sale of cupcakes and candy in order to purchase a map of France.

Eager Romanites participated in the many club activities through the year such as caroling for the Roman Saturnalia (Christmas to us), journeying to Muncie to the annual Junior Classical League convention, planning and giving the annual Roman Banquet, and attending the monthly meetings. The Latin Clubbers sponsored several candy sales, and also added to their treasury through the sale of name labels and candles. Under the guiding hand of Miss Lois Rinsch, the club initiated several new members and had a very active year.

Soaring The Sports Realm

Sitting through that football game in zero weather —the disgust you felt at failing to bring a blanket . . . that time you stepped to the plate in the last of the seventh with two men down—those slaps on the back after you hit a homer and won the game . . . the sleepless nights before grades came out—"to stay on the team, or not to stay on the team" . . . that precious front row seat at the home net games—the sophisticated sensation you experienced when singing the senior song . . . the cheering of the crowd as your teammates helped you off the floor with a sprained ankle—your thankfulness for being an Airedale as you lay awake that night with ice packs surrounding your swelled leg . . . that surge of prestige you felt as you donned that long-awaited-for senior jacket—the fitting reward for all of your efforts . . . it's all been a small part of SOARING THE SPORTS REALM!

In spite of losing eight and tying one game this season, John Carbone was rewarded handsomely by having five of his losing squad picked on all-conference teams while one boy, Eddie Hollander, received honorable mention on the all-state team. Conference honors were placed on Gary Winder, second team; Don Burnworth, third team; and Jack Ely, Rex Leffingwell, and Eddie Hollander, honorable mention.

Carbone's gridsters were outscored 201 to 82 points and were on the short end of net yardage—1,253 to 2,285. Coach Carbone lost 14 lettermen from the 1956 squad, but 18 boys who saw considerable action will be on hand for the 1957 season.

Homecoming Draws Record Crowd, Proves Successful

In honor of the undefeated 1950 football team, the first football Homecoming in Hartford City High School history was held, October 12, 1956, sponsored by the High School Alumni Association. Although John Carbone's Airedales suffered defeat at the hands of the Wabash Apaches, 26-0, the Homecoming proved a successful event. The four homecoming queen candidates—Jane Cale, Nancy Lord, Julia Hartman, and Becky Dearfield—were escorted onto the field at half-time in 1956 convertibles. Following the announcement of Nancy Lord as queen, co-football captains, Rex Leffingwell and Eddie Hollander, who presided over the second half of the game, presented the court with corsages. An open house was held in the newly erected Parkside School following the game. The queen and her attendants served.

Frosh Monopolize Victories, Go Undefeated

The 1956 season saw Frank Teats's Frosh-Soph football squad at the front end of another undefeated season for the third time in the last four years. Five opponents felt the "bite" of the future 'Dales with the tough Royerton and Portland teams being unable to score on the "Pups."

Opponents were outscored 130 points to 37—a praiseworthy job—considering that only three boys remained from the 1955 team.

New G.A.A. Gets 40 Girls; H-Club Sells Photos

This year was the beginning of the Girls' Athletic Association, which, under the direction of the girls' physical education teacher, Miss Joan Kasparek, met to indulge in such sports as bowling and swimming. The 40 "amazons" from grades 8-12 elected as their leaders Jennie Beeson, president; Patty Rogers, vice-president; and Nancy Nottingham, secretary-treasurer.

Every major letter winner including managers and cheerleaders were again a part of the annual H-Club. To receive the necessary money required to purchase athletic awards for achievement day, the 32 club members sponsored two dairy lunches during the year. Coaches John Carbone and Claude Weeks served as sponsors.

Coach Claude Weeks, in his ninth year as Airedale cage mentor, led the 1957 team to the CIC championship and the establishment of the best record in the school history.

"Airedales — We're Proud of You!"

Coach Claude Weeks's Airdales entered the 1956-57 net season classed as mighty green; but after racking up 10 straight wins, including two from N.C.C. foes, they were soon tabbed "tall and talented." The completion of the 20-game schedule saw the 'Dales on the top of 19, losing only to the Mississenewa Indians.

The Weeksmen dropped Dunkirk, Roll, and Portland in the sectional tourney, and rolled over Bluffton for the third time in their Regional opener. The Marion Giants, not forgetting an earlier defeat, succeeded in downing the Airedales in the final Regional game.

This year's edition of the 'Dales brought honors to the school not soon to be forgotten. They won the Central Indiana Conference for the first time in the school history, compiled a better season record than any former team, and won a fifth straight sectional crown.

Rebounder "Laffy" Leffingwell and offensive man "Shag" Shatto figure dimensions for a mechanical drawing project. Both of these seniors contributed valuable relief roles to the 'Dale outfit.

Rough and tough Don Burnworth was the winner of the 1957 Rotary Club Award for outstanding sportsmanship in football. A fullback on the squad, he was a topnotch gridder on both offense and defense. Don scored 36 points this year and rated on the third All-Conference team.

Cary Blair, winner of the 1957 Kiwanis award for outstanding sportsmanship in basketball, has been a member of the varsity for three years. "Birdlegs" led the Airedale scoring this year with 420 points and was the first player in high school history to be named on the C.I.C. All-Conference first team. As the Airedale playmaker, coachable Cary drew praise of even opponents for his good teamwork and shooting accuracy.

John Knox Tops Cinder Scorers With 80 Points

Last season a comparatively small number of cindermen met the call of John Carbone with the result being only one victory in eight encounters. The victim was Alexandria by a score of 80-49.

Leading the 'Dale scoring was John Knox with an 80-point total and a 10.1 time in the 100-yard dash added to his achievements. Following Knox were Dave Jones with 67 5/6 points and Raymond Cline with 33⅔. Jones ran the mile in 5.01 and the 440-yard dash in 56 seconds. Cline was a member of the frequent winning mile relay team.

Dual meet defeats came at the hands of Yorktown 76-33, Fairmount 69½-39½, Tipton 88-21, Winchester 82⅔-27⅓, Montpelier 59⅓-49⅔, and Portland 88-21. The Airedales placed third in a triangular meet with 31 points while Peru and Huntington each scored 63.

The sectional track meet did not draw any 'Dale participants but the Carbonemen captured eight points in the C.I.C. meet to rate eleventh out of 12 teams.

Dealing With The Public

The school community and civic organizations gained much through working cooperatively this year. The Blackford County Tuberculosis Association promoted health and safety through rendering the TB patch test to junior high pupils and sponsoring the mobile chest x-ray unit. The Junior Chamber of Commerce gave upperclassmen the opportunity to compete in the National Voice of Democracy essay and speaking contest. After the elimination of students in their English classes, eight finalists were chosen to present their entries before a panel of speech authorities. The two winners were recipients of savings bonds. The school, in turn, opened its doors to parents and other interested citizens at the annual Open House. The Kiwanis all-night festival and the presentation of Class Day awards drew the curtain on the year's events.

Retro Editor-in-chief Bonnie Sue Harrison checks page proofs for the opening section art work before sending it to the printer.

Appointing of the 1957 Retro staff members to their positions was performed in September this year instead of the previous spring because of the change in advisers. After considering many possible themes, the staff made the final decision and work got underway. Besides getting a late start, the staff was confronted by numerous other difficulties—Mrs. Franks's illness, camera trouble, and last, but by no means least, those hard-to-meet deadlines. Pictures were scheduled, taken, and often retaken. It was rough going at times, but with the help of the Edmonds and the Kingsleys, we were able to get the good pictures we wanted, and by deadline dates, too. The cover colors were chosen and a design worked out that would be "just perfect." Sports and literary editors kept the copy rolling in, and with each day new progress was made. At long last on March 15 the completed page dummy and engravings were sent to the printer. Staff members then began the long wait until May. Although at times it was working against a stone wall, it was worth all the toil and trouble to see the finished product on class day.

Major changes occurred this year as the duties of adviser were undertaken by Ball State graduate Mrs. Barbara Franks, and the task of printing was performed by the Fairmount News.

Editors found the job of proofreading copy difficult as the trip to Fairmount was a longer one than the short trek previous staffs made to the school print shop. One suitable method for occasionally transporting copy to Fairmount was found in the daily journey of Assistant Principal Mrs. Marion Williamson to her home there.

During the first semester, journalism students prepared themselves to take over the paper by dividing into staffs of three or four, and mimeographing miniature papers. Using this method, the young journalists learned how to write copy and headlines, proofread, and edit stories before becoming full-fledged reporters at the beginning of the second semester.

Two six-page editions of the Inkspot were circulated when extra recognition was given to the Airedales at tourney time and to seniors in the spring.

(BOTTOM): Sports Editors Nolan Willman and Judy Dutro prepare questionaires to send neighboring schools concerning the tourney edition.

16 Juniors Enact Comedy

Against a setting relative to the early 1900's, the junior class presented "Meet Me in St. Louis," a production dealing with the Smith family of eight who lived in St. Louis. Frank Cunningham as Mr. Smith, head of the family and a successful businessman, gave a portrayal of a father torn between his job and love for his family. His problem, the actual theme of the play, is that in order to obtain a necessary raise he must move his family to New York. The play is centered around the efforts of the five headstrong Smith children and Mr. Smith's middle-aged wife, Carol Hedstrom, who are firmly against leaving St. Louis at the time of the World's Fair. The Smith youngsters finally clinch a raise for their father without a move to New York, and all ends well as the curtain falls after the third act.

Director George Tolson makes suggestions for improvement to Judy Dutro, Carolyn Upp, Marilyn Leech, Nancy Lord, and Dave Bennett, cast members.

Seniors Present Mystery

"Cuckoos On The Hearth," a mystery concerning the exciting occurrences of one night, involves the story of a young wife and her husband's crazy cousin, played by Anne Kriegbaum, helpless in their secluded Maine home with a maniac lose. Donald Carlton, a young scientist played by Cary Blair, departs in the first act for Washington, D. C., on a mission concerning his invention of a new type of gas. His sensible wife, Bonnie Sue Harrison, allows three strangers seeking shelter in the blizzard to enter the home only to find out later that the trio, played by Ed Huffman, Steve Hershberger, and Hal Meyers, intend to capture her for a leper colony.

The play has two endings, as the curtain draws on each of the second and third acts. The first ending is supposedly the version of Zadoc Grimes, a mysterious writer and boarder at the Carlton's home played by Bob Thornburg. The final curtain finds Mr. Carlton at home once more with his wife and the real inmate, Tom McCaffrey, captured.

Anne Kriegbaum as Lulu, the unbalanced cousin, entertains the Professor, Ed Huffman, the Preacher, Steve Hershberger, the Doctor, Hal Meyers, and Mr. Grimes, Bob Thornburg.

Gary Bowman, Anna McCollum, Mary Janet Dee, and Vicki Baugher study their lines.

Mrs. Carlton, Bonnie Sue Harrison, watches as her husband, Cary Blair, reads a letter which Tom McCaffrey, the murderer disguised as the sheriff, has just delivered.

Baron, well known hypnotist, works his powers on George Sparks, Katie Willams, Don Burnworth, Steve Hershberger, Mide Hartman, and Jack Magers during the Elk's portion of the all-night festival.

Attending The Mardi Gras . . . Traveling

Drifting into a gay "Mardi Gras" street scene through the mouth of a giant paper mache dragon, dancing among balloons, multi-colored paper streamers, and Japanese lanterns to the music of John Schumn and his Starlighters, were 1956 prom-goers. Crowned queen of the "Mardi Gras," Jane Cale and her escort, Jim Uhrich, led the masked promsters in the grand march, the finale to the Prom portion of the fabulous evening. After showing their passport, the eager-beavers took imaginary trips to foreign countries by TWA as a part of the Kiwanis All-Night Festival. The first landing was at the Hartford Theater where a comedy, "The Birds and the Bees," was shown. Then, donning blue jeans and sport shirts, the guests were off to the American Legion Home for a tasty breakfast, after which they whisked away to the Country Club for contests and square dancing. The gala event can be summed up by the remark made by one sleepy and dreamy-eyed promster, "It was wonderful!"

Juniors and seniors reach for the balloons and confetti that were suspended during the "Mardi Gras."

(TOP): A group of prom goers lounge on the Country Club grounds, hesitant to "call it a night" at 7:00 in the morning. (BOTTOM RIGHT): Dates devour their breakfast at the Legion Home, after changing their attire from formals to jeans.

By TWA

Y-Clubs Aid Civic

Celebrating the 75th Anniversary of their world-wide organization was the largest membership of Y-Teens in school history. Answering the membership call this year were 120 girls. Net fans sat in awe when over 60 seemingly "little girls" appeared at the Elwood-Hartford City basketball game. Wearing their hair in pigtails, clad in short skirts, and carrying dolls, these "small frys" were actually sophomores undergoing the tortures of informal initiation.

The club members "dug in" for the March of Dimes Drive by holding potato chip sales in the hall at noon. Selling tickets to a drive-in movie, "The Yearling," was the Y-Teens way of aiding the Memorial Swimming Pool Fund. Concluding the year by sharing in the Hi-Y, Y-Teen Spring Banquet, the members vowed to continue with their motto for the year—"To be a force to good in the world today."

Projects, Hold Dances

Civic-minded Hi-Y members contributed much of their time and devices to community projects such as the swimming pool and polio funds. Although a "chilly" project, the Hi-Y boys profited highly from selling concessions at football games.

Joining with the Y-Teens, the Hi-Y's sponsored the school-wide Thanksgiving and Easter programs and a Valentine sock hop in the gym.

Regular meetings found the affiliates of the YMCA swimming, playing basketball, and listening to a talk on safe driving by State Trooper John Cook.

Senior sponsors Mrs. Esther Daniels and Mr. James Lurtey aid President Cecil Beeson, Vice-President Mike Shatto, Secretay Jane Cale, and Treasurer Max Pulley in choosing robes for graduation. Their final decision was white dacron caps and gowns for girls and royal blue for the boys.

As May 29 Approached, We Bid Our Good-byes.

Council Sponsors Programs, Governs Student Body

Illustrating throughout the year that the school itself is a democracy were Student Council members as they performed their governmental duties.

Besides solving school problems, establishing a monitor system, directing the school Christmas program, and sponsoring both Fun Night and Homecoming, the Council extended a welcome to all parents at the annual Open House. The group aided many charitable organizations through the school Chest Fund and sponsored a clothing drive for the Care organization.

Top councilers were Mike Shatto, president; John Jackson, vice-president; Nancy Lord, secretary; and Kathy Tidd, corresponding secretary.

STUDENT COUNCIL

Jan and Lee Clark lead the 1956 commencement procession.

1956 Seniors Entertain

Students found welcome pauses from classwork in the form of Student Council sponsored entertainment and holiday programs. School audiences laughed and learned at shows based on acrobatics, astronomy, Chinese customs and ventriloquism. Two special treats were in store when Pat O'Connor, Indianapolis 500-mile race driver, and Glenn Cunningham, Olympic distance runner, presented talks to students on the subjects of safety and good sportsmanship. The educational aspect was emphasized by the vocational guidance sessions. Upperclassmen and their parents were "guinea pigs" for the College Night plan, undertaken to give the people "who foot the bill" the opportunity to meet and discuss their offspring's futures with representatives from ten colleges.
